

DUO BLANK

PRESS RELEASE – 10th February 2012

The Maltese techno project, Duo Blank have recently released a single entitled 'Even' which features Errol Sammut on vocals. Duo Blank consist of Frank Cachia and Edwin Balzan on synthesizers.

This single has been released in anticipation of the imminent issue of Duo Blank's next studio album, Propulsion.

The single may be accessed freely on the website: soundcloud.com/duoblank

Duo Blank's partnership with the Airport Impressions and KOI's frontman - Errol Sammut goes back to early 2011 when one of its members, Frank Cachia had produced the first KOI release entitled 'Tears in your Eyes'.

During the same period, Duo Blank were looking for singers to various tracks in their forthcoming album and decided to invite Errol over to their studio to record 'Even'.

The track is dark and electronic with distinctly protest-oriented lyrics - Errol's vocals are also presented in a robotic vocoder voice in the song's verse. The track also evolves into a simple melodic synth-line - a characteristic which is predominant to the duo's eighties synthpop influences. The song's words and music are by Edwin Balzan, whilst the song was entirely recorded, produced and mixed by Duo Blank at their own studio in Qormi.

This single release comes shortly after Edwin and Frank's visit to the Wired Masters post production mastering suite in the UK, where this single together with all tracks from their upcoming album were mastered.

Duo Blank background:

Duo Blank were formed in 1998 and have so far released 1 studio album (Hectic Electric) in 1999 and a live album (Transmission - Live at Nova) in 2002, together with various singles on various international labels spanning between 2001 and 2007. The duo were also active in the local live techno and electronic dance circuit with their energetic live sets accompanied by the use of an interesting mix of computer and retro-hardware music equipment.
